Howard County's Liquor Injunction Case Is Appealed

Supreme Court Will Decide Tuesday Whether to Advance Its Hearing

DELAY BATESVILLE

Local Option Vote There Is Held Up by Petition Technicality

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—The Arkansas Supreme Court took under submission Monday a petition by F. E. Mulkey, Nashville liquor store operator, that he be permitted to continue business operations in dry Howard county pending the decision of the tribunal on his appeal attacking the validity of the local option election held September 5.

The tribunal indicated that a decision would be handed down Tuesday on whether Mulkey's case would be advanced "as a matter of public interest and the circuit court ruling suspended pending adjudication."

Mulkey appealed last week from the circuit court's decision that the county court did not err in setting the election date for September 5.

The liquor store owner contended that the petition asking for the election were circulated in an illegal manner.

Batesville, Ark.—(AP)—A legal technicality, previously overlooked, will prevent Batesville from holding its scheduled local option election Tuesday, County Judge Oscar T. Jones announced Monday.

The announcement from Judge Jones said that the law provided that "the county court shall authorize an election at the next regular term of court after the petition has been received."

The local petition was filed with Judge Jones October 7 in the term of court which opened October 1, and the judge said this precluded him from legally making out the election order "until the next regular term of the county court."

This would be January 6.

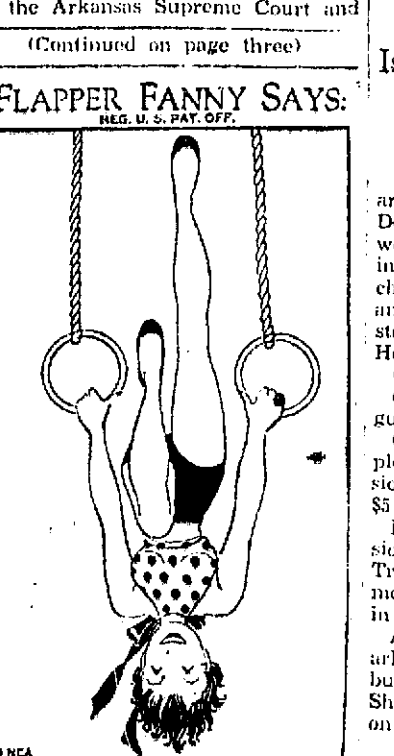

Chancery Injunction Void
LITTLE ROCK—Special Chancellor E. R. Parham over the week-end dismissed injunction proceedings begun by F. E. Mulkey, liquor dealer at Nashville, who sought to restrain Revenue Commission Earl R. Wisconsin from closing Mulkey's liquor store at 12 Saturday night, 86 days after certification of results of a special election which outlawed sale of liquor in Howard county.

Special Chancellor Parham sustained a demurrer filed by Thomas Fitzhugh, assistant attorney general, and Millard Alford, attorney for the state Revenue Department, contending that Pulaski Chancery Court lacked jurisdiction.

The acting chancellor ruled that the petition was predicated on the legality of the Howard county referendum and that the Pulaski court could not grant an injunction without passing on validity of the election, a question subject to decision only by courts of that county or the State Supreme Court.

An appeal attacking the petition that resulted in County Judge A. T. Henry calling the special election is pending in the Arkansas Supreme Court and (Continued on page three)

Senate President Precedes Speaker

Follows Lieutenant Governor in Succession, Supreme Court Holds

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—The Arkansas Supreme Court ruled Monday that the president of the state senate is next in line of succession to the governor and lieutenant governor.

The opinion affirmed a Mississippi county circuit court judgment in declaring valid the appointment by Acting Governor W. F. Norrell last April 18 of Miss Bessie Lyness, Craighead county, as a notary public.

The suit was the outgrowth of a disagreement between the senate president pro tempore and Speaker Harvey Thorne of the House of Representatives over who should serve as governor in the absence from the state of both the chief executive and the lieutenant governor.

Charging Frairie county election officials with fraud "which destroys the integrity of the ballot" the Arkansas Supreme Court Monday ordered County Judge J. J. Holmes removed from office and declared that a vacancy existed.

The decision reversed a Prairie circuit judgment of October 24 which held that Holmes was the winner in the 1934 primary over J. F. Sims by a 12-vote margin. Reviewing the testimony of the lower court, the high tribunal said: "The irregularities enumerated are sufficient to show a new and unique method of holding a primary."

Great Christmas Parade to Be Held 3:30 Wednesday

Comic Giants From Metropolitan Centers Will Be Seen in Hope

PARADE OF FLOATS

Civic Organizations and Individuals to Compete for Float Prizes

Preparation of the Young Business Men's big Christmas parade to be staged in Hope Wednesday afternoon was nearing completion Monday, giving promise of one of the greatest spectacles here in years.

Features of the parade will be special floats entered by civic organizations and individuals, competing for cash prizes offered by various merchants of Hope, which are pooled by the finance committee of the Young Business Men's association.

Giant funny-faced figures with painted faces, often seen in big Eastern city parades, will add spectacular emphasis to the occasion.

Santa Claus will be here in person to add real Christmas spirit to the event. Schools of Hope will be dismissed in time to allow students to participate in or witness the parade.

The 37-piece Hope Boys band will furnish music. Much interest is being aroused and a big crowd from the Hope trade territory is expected to line the sidewalks for the procession.

A committee composed of members of the Business & Professional Women's club of Hope will act as judges.

All parade contestants are asked to register with the parade committee, composed of Terrell Cornelius, A. E. Stonequest, Fred Gray and J. K. Sale.

Starting time of the parade has been set for 3:30 p. m. Formation will probably be on South Main street, although no definite announcement of this has been made yet.

The country club building has been repaired with a new roof, and repainted, and carpenters were busy Monday putting down a new floor.

Interior of the building will be decorated appropriately for a Christmas celebration. Invitations have been mailed to surrounding towns and a big crowd of merry makers is expected.

The dance starts at 10 p. m. Admission will be $1.10.

G. O. P. Convention Is Up to Three Cities

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Bidding for the 1936 Republican national convention was definitely narrowed Monday to Cleveland, Chicago and Kansas City.

Right now it is extremely important to remember that except for the long range program of old age annuities or benefits—a phase which you mustn't confuse with federal grants to states for immediate old age pensions, which can be effective as soon as congress appropriates—the carrying out of the program depends on state legislative and administrative co-operation.

State programs must be devised and approved here and state funds provided to "atch" the federal grants for persons to needy aged, mothers, and blind persons as well as the federal subsidies for other welfare work.

Each state must legislate a satisfactory unemployment insurance program within certain broad federal standards, if it is to retain at home a stipulated 90 per cent of the amount of unemployment taxes its employers will be paying to the federal treasury.

Only eight states have set up unemployment insurance laws. Some fast work is expected in 1936 on the part of casual task faced.

The administrative job created here by the program will be tremendous and the bulk of it will arise when the Social Security Board begins to establish individual files for more than 25,000,000 Americans who will be paying into the Federal Old Age Reserve Fund toward their annuities in later life.

Fortunately, most of the men in charge of the job are of high caliber. Members of the Social Security Board are:

Social Security Tax Effective January 1

Financing of Old Age Pensions, and Unemployed, Near

TREMENDOUS TASK

If Valid, Program Will Tap Payrolls of 30 Million Americans

This is the first of a series of three articles explaining what the government-state Social Security Plan means to you. The program, most ambitious of its kind in American history, becomes effective Jan. 1.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—The most tremendous social-economic experiment in our history, the so-called social security program, will become effective on the first day of 1936.

From January 1, industrial payrolls of the nation will be taxed to support a national federal-state system of unemployment insurance.

(The tax won't be collected until 1937, but most employers have budgeted for it.)

Soon afterward, probably also in January, Congress will appropriate almost $100,000,000 for use of the states in immediate federally approved programs for:

1. Pensions for needy aged, dependent mothers, and needy blind.

2. Extension of state welfare activities, for maternity and infant care, crippled and neglected children, public health and vocational rehabilitation.

3. An additional $4,000,000 grant for expenses of state unemployment compensation systems.

In 1937 the federal government will begin collecting compulsory contributions from both employers and employees for a huge national old age benefit system designed eventually to provide definite incomes for millions of workers after they reach the age of 65.

Millions Are Affected
There you have the three big phases of the New Deal's most ambitious piece of legislation—a program affecting at least 30,000,000 Americans, understood by few members of the Congress which passed it, damned by certain foremost authorities on economic security, defended often as "at least a beginning," viewed apprehensively by many employers, and sometimes ballyhooed as something like the dawn of the millennium.

"Among our objectives," said president Roosevelt, "I place first the security of the men, women, and children of the nation."

And the Social Security Act is the answer, for better or for worse, to a system which in its cruelest moments finds many millions of citizens on public charity and even in better times finds millions only a jump from destitution or already there.

State Aid Is Vital
Right now it is extremely important to remember that except for the long range program of old age annuities or benefits—a phase which you mustn't confuse with federal grants to states for immediate old age pensions, which can be effective as soon as congress appropriates—the carrying out of the program depends on state legislative and administrative co-operation.

State programs must be devised and approved here and state funds provided to "atch" the federal grants for persons to needy aged, mothers, and blind persons as well as the federal subsidies for other welfare work.

British Officials Defend Peace Plan

Meanwhile, Entrenched Italians Await Expected Ethiopian Attack

By the Associated Press
A counter-attack on critics of the Anglo-French plan for ending the Italo-Ethiopian war is in preparation by the British government. It was learned Monday.

On the southern front, meanwhile, the fascist army assumed a defensive position. From Dolo came reports that Italy's weary southern forces were braced for an attack expected momentarily from a mass of 40,000 Ethiopian warriors under Ras Desta Dantu.

Mussolini Objects
ROME, Italy—Premier Benito Mussolini will object to the Franco-British peace proposal on five fundamental counts, it was indicated here Sunday night as all government-inspired newspapers launched an open attack on the proposed basis for ending Italy's war against Ethiopia.

Mussolini's reply to the interesting powers, reliable sources revealed, will contain the following main criticisms:

1. The proposed colonization zone in Southern Ethiopia is inferior to the sphere of influence already accorded

Philadelphia Scion Missing; Federals Join in Man-Hunt

Search Spreads Out for Caleb J. Milne, Actor, of Old Family

GET RANSOM NOTE

Kidnapers Looking to Milne's Grandfather for the "Payoff"

NEW YORK—(AP)—Federal G-men joined New York police Monday in a search for Caleb J. Milne, 4th, hand-some actor scion of an old Philadelphia family, after a letter to his brother indicated that he had been kidnapped for ransom.

"We have your brother in the country," was the purport of a letter postmarked Poughkeepsie, N. Y., "Keep in touch with your grandfather in Philadelphia and have a large sum of cash available. We will communicate with you again."

The investigation is being conducted with the utmost secrecy.

Textile Scion Missing
NEW YORK—(AP)—Police were asked Sunday night to seek Caleb J. Milne, 24, actor and grandson of Caleb Jones Milne, wealthy Philadelphia textile manufacturer.

The Daily News said his disappearance Saturday morning, ostensibly to visit his grandfather in Philadelphia, was followed by a note from purported kidnappers demanding ransom.

Milne's brother and roommate, Frederick, asked police to begin the search. He said the youth left a note asserting he was going to Philadelphia and would return the same night. When he did not appear, his disappearance was reported.

At Woodstock, N. Y., a woman who refused to give her name, but said she was an aunt of Milne, confirmed that the young actor had been kidnapped and that a ransom note had been received. She said federal agents were working on the case in New York.

Detective McAuliffe at police headquarters said letter had been received from Poughkeepsie, N. Y., asserting that young Milne was in that city and "nothing was wrong." The letter, however, was not made public.

The News said a strange telephone call Saturday morning at his home here led young Caleb to leave suddenly.

"This is Dr. Green in Gracie Square," a voice supposedly informed Caleb. "Your grandfather is seriously ill, and wishes you to come with me at once to Philadelphia."

Young Milne jotted down an address at which he was to meet "Dr. Green," and before departing asked Mrs. Louise Tarbel, in charge of his apartment house, the direction to Gracie Square near Eighty-sixth street and the East river.

Husband Is Slain by Negro Woman

Killing Witnessed by Another Man, Say Investigating Officers

Dremon Muldrow, 50, negro, living on the north side of the city, was shot and killed at his home late Saturday night by his wife, Ardean, who officers said emptied a .38 calibre pistol at him.

Two bullets took effect, one entering just above the left eye and lodging in the head. The other entered the left shoulder and ranged downward into the chest. He died instantly.

The woman surrendered to officers and was lodged in jail. She waived preliminary hearing in municipal court Monday and was held for action of the grand jury.

Officers quoted the negro woman as saying that her husband came home drunk, a quarrel started, and he struck her over the head with a stick of wood, inflicting a wound on her forehead.

The shooting occurred about 11 p. m. Craig Simms, negro, who claimed to be a roomer at the Muldrow home, was a witness of the shooting, officers said.

Coroner Weaver investigated and said that Muldrow came to his death by gun wounds. No inquest was held. Muldrow was employed by the Hope Heading company.

Book Is Written by Hope Woman

Margaret S. Quayle Author of Columbia University Publication

There has just been published by the Bureau of Publications of Columbia University in New York City, an interesting volume entitled, "A Study of Some Aspects of Satisfaction in the Vocation of Stenography."

The local interest in this publication is because the volume was written by Margaret S. Quayle, Ph. D. of Columbia University, and now head of the Department of Psychology of State Teachers College in Buffalo, New York.

Dr. Margaret Quayle was born in Hope, and still calls this her home, and she is a substantial property holder in this county. The pioneer citizens here remember her as "Biedie" Quayle, the daughter of the late Mrs. Alabama Grissom, and niece of Jim Phillips.

This volume on the Vocation of Stenography is a careful and psychological analysis resulting from personal interviews made by Miss Quayle with hundreds of stenographers during the past five years.

In 1932, Miss Quayle published another volume along the same line, entitled, "As Told By Business Girls." Prior to these publications, Miss Quayle spent several years in Belgium and Czechoslovakia; thus, her volumes have an international interest.

British Officials

to Italy under the Italo-British protocols of 1881 and 1884, the three-power understanding of 1896 and the Italo-British pact of 1925. All important from Rome's viewpoint, is the plan's failure to view the territorial link comprehended in the 1925 accord, which purportedly promised to Italy a pathway between its two East African colonies running along the Anglo-Egyptian Sudanese border west of Addis Ababa.

Exchange Principle Opposed
2. Italy cannot cede Assab, Eritrea, to Ethiopia as an outlet to the sea. The principle of "territorial exchanges," Mussolini will hold, is based on the false hypothesis of Italo-Ethiopian equality. If, as Ethiopia contends, it does not intend to use a proposed port for traffic in arms and slaves, creating of a free port in French Somaliland will suffice its trade needs, the port will be leased.

3. Proposed "frontier revisions" are inadequate from Italy's standpoint. Italy is not interested in acquiring Ogaden province and the Danakil badlands, as suggested in the Hoare-Laval plan. It regards these territories as useless desert stretches.

4. Italy cannot consider returning to Ethiopia its Coptic Christian holy city, Aksum, the priests and population of which voluntarily pledged allegiance to the Italian flag.

5. Italy's status in the proposed colonization zone, as defined in the Franco-British recommendations, would be too uncertain. A police force would be needed to guarantee Italian economic expansion in the area, and Italian interests would be subjected to inadmissible influence from Addis Ababa and Geneva.

Arizona Land Plans Undisturbed by Criminal Court Action

SHORT CREEK, Ari.—(AP)—Sanhedrin cult leaders decided over the week-end to carry on with their colony here despite a prosecutor's statement that the polygamy conviction of two members would break up the strange order.

"I don't believe the conviction will have any effect—other than to cement the colony more firmly," said J. W. Musser of Salt Lake City. He is treasurer of the common law trust which operates the colony.

"I don't think there are any people here now who are breaking the laws," said John Y. Barlow, the cult's bishop. He added they would continue agricultural land development.

County Prosecutor E. Elmo Bollinger said the convictions would "obliterate" the order but said he could name "more than a dozen men beyond my jurisdiction who have two to five wives each and as many children."

The colony leaders left behind them in jail at Kingman, I. C. Spencer and Price Johnson, cultists convicted of "open and notorious cohabitation" with "plural wives."

In bidding good-bye to the leaders, Spencer and Johnson urged continuance of the colony program. They are under sentence to serve 18 months to two years in prison.

Jap Allies Seize Port
TIENSIN, China.—(AP)—The Japanese-supported autonomous state in East Hopei province sent its armed forces into action for the first time Monday, seizing Tangku, strategic port and railway center 27 miles east of here.

Several were reported killed and wounded on both sides in a brief battle between the autonomy forces and the retreating Tangku garrison. The attackers timed their assault to take place while the Chinese Peace Preservation Corps, under Gen. Shiang Chen, retreating Hopei governor was being transferred southward. Japanese troops stationed at Tangku stood by while Japanese officers mediated the quarrel.

The result was complete withdrawal of Shiang's force from Tangku and with it the last vestige of Chinese government authority. Japanese reports said.

Egyptians Renew Independence Fight

British Lives Are Threatened by Rioters in Streets of Cairo

CAIRO, Egypt.—Unceasing anti-British rioting by Egyptian Nationalists Sunday led British authorities to urge the government to take effective measures to protect the lives of British troops and foreign residents in Cairo. The demand was made by Premier Tewfik Nessim Pasha by Sir Miles Lampson, British high commissioner for Egypt, as crowds of Egyptian Nationalists, seemingly undaunted by the blows of police clubs, stormed through the streets shouting demands for complete independence of Egypt and immediate enforcement of the Treaty of Alliance, drafted with Great Britain five years ago.

The Truth About Diet

By DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Along with the proteins go the carbohydrates in your daily food. One is just as important as the other, in the maintenance of a healthy body. But while the proteins provide the tissue-building material, the carbohydrates furnish the necessary energy, in the form of sugars and starches. Carbohydrates are really sugars and starches. The sugars are the chief source of energy for the human body. A person requires a daily intake of from 350 to 500 grams of sugar a day. No one has found out the minimum amount of sugar he can take and still live; but in general it is believed to be less than 100 grams, or about a quarter of a pound daily for any length of time. Certain minimum diets taken by people contain very small amounts of carbohydrates, some as little as 35 grams of sugar daily. Anybody on such a diet should be under the constant care of a physician. When we eat carbohydrates, digestion of the starches is begun by the

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

It's a mean trick, so it is, to tell children that Santa Claus won't bring them anything unless they are good. One small chap said to his mother last year (I know, because I was there and heard him), "I don't want Santa Claus around here. If he brings me toys, I'll throw them out of the window."

I felt like saying, "Good for you, kid," because his aunts and uncles and grandparents put in whole days telling him that if he touched the gas-key, or rolled his velociped down the hill, or wouldn't drink his milk, that Santa Claus would pass him up. Every one of them had bought the stores out for the boy. They were having the best time of their lives. Every new drum and train and jumping-jack had them packed so full of expectant thrills they couldn't wait until Christmas.

Elders Aroused Child's Interest
They had promised him the moon tied with a red bow and the earth in a holly wreath and explained that Santa Claus was the grandest person who ever lived at the North Pole. They had him all worked up over that mysterious thing called Christmas, for he'd forgotten the last one.

Then when these doting parents and relatives decided that the child had an inkling of what it was all about, they used it as a club. Naturally, the child felt the way you'd expect. He mistrusted the old eggs with such a hair-trigger disposition. Who wanted his around, presents or no presents, when he couldn't stand for a little shove, or a twiddle of that tempting key on the floor that should not be there anyway to tempt boys?

I suppose I have said it too about Santa Claus keeping a sharp watch, but I can't think I ever rubbed it in. I think as on the temperament of the child. If the effort to bring about use of the right hand is followed by signs of nervous disturbance, you should cease trying to compel right-handedness.

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

You may have had low moments in which you have wondered what on earth that handsome sea dog, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, was up to down there in Antarctica. You may even have known moments of wonder whether the whole business was not a publicity stunt. If you have, I advise you to read "Discovery," the book in which Admiral Byrd tells all about his last expedition. You will find it highly enlightening—and darned interesting, too.

Byrd was after what every other explorer is after: new light on the earth's dark places. The earth's dark places are few, now, and the settlement of new empires no longer follows the explorer's discoveries; but the urge is the same, and the knowledge obtained is of equal importance to science.

With All My Love

BEGIN HERE TODAY
After the death of her parents, lovely DANA WESTBROOK comes from abroad to make her home with her grandmother, MRS. WILLARD CAMERON. NANCY WALLACE, housekeeper, NANCY WALLACE, resents Dana's coming. Mrs. Cameron is elated when rich RONALD MOORE falls in love with her granddaughter, Dana, meanwhile, Dana has become attracted to DR. SCOTT STANLEY.

Nancy, who masks her love for Ronald behind an antagonistic attitude, unobtrusively watches his love for Dana deepen. Just as anxiously, PAULA LONG watches Scott Stanley's interest in Dana increase.

Dana and Scott decide to marry. Mrs. Cameron gloomily predicts the marriage will not last. Paula is torn by an emotional storm over the news that Scott has married Dana.

With recovered poise, Paula becomes a friend of Dana's and is a constant visitor at her apartment. Dana meets domestic difficulties continually, and resents the situation of her grandmother that Scott is not able to take care of her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXIII
DANA could manage without new clothes, but she decided something really must be done about Scott's shabby suits. Every one knew a man was as successful as he looked.

When it became apparent that Scott's opposition to this view could not be shaken Dana resorted to subterfuge. His birthday was to roll around before long. How wonderful it would be to present him with a beautifully tailored suit!

There was still $20 left of the money Aunt Ellen had given her. Dana had put it away, thinking an emergency might arise when a little cash would help greatly.

Scott's suit was an emergency. In the following weeks, Dana skimped and contrived to make tempting dishes from left-overs without Scott suspecting that a small part of the household fund every day was finding its way into her trunk.

Ten days before his birthday Dana carried one of Scott's old suits to a leading tailor's shop. "Oh, yes, we can make the suit from the measurements of this one," the tailor said, spreading out his hands in bewilderment, "but how could I know this is a perfect fit for him?"

"It looks fine on him," Dana explained, "only it is old, as you see. Besides, I called my husband for a fitting you would never make the suit."

"Very well. We make it—this way." The tailor had fallen a victim to Dana's charms. He added, "If it doesn't fit, we'll alter it without any extra charge."

On the way to the street car Dana passed several stores and noted their window displays. Some of them were gorgeous.

would laugh together. Then the girl would hunch her shoulder nearer his. The signs of being happily married were apparent to the observing Miss Lee.

In another chair, an old lady dozed. In another, a man held his small son, using all his resources to keep the youngster quiet until his mother returned.

Miss Lee was the only person in the room who wasn't occupied. She was restless and unhappy looking.

"Not married and miserable," Miss Lee guessed shrewdly. Her eyes dropped with satisfaction to the small diamond she wore on the third finger of her left hand.

Soon Miss Lee would be leaving Dr. Stanley. In a way, she would be sorry. He was awfully nice to work for, though he couldn't pay much. He was getting more patients all the time, but not all of them were paying patients.

Miss Lee carried the slip of paper, on which Paula's name was written, to Scott.

He frowned a little. "Show Miss Long in," he said.

Paula entered and sat down, smiling a little uncertainly.

"Well, Dr. Stanley? I'm here as a patient."

"Ridiculous. You're looking fit." "Not ridiculous at all, Scott," Paula said. "It's about those head aches of mine."

"Pretty bad ones?" "They're devastating. I don't think I've ever told you how really fearful they are. I'm here, not to chat, but as a bona fide paying patient."

Scott said, "That's absurd. But let's hear some symptoms."

Again, he asked questions. When did the headaches usually begin? Had they grown in intensity? Paula's voice rose excitedly. "Oh, yes, they're worse—much worse. They're like a thousand devils tearing at me. I've no peace at all, Scott, until—" She broke off, her face flushing.

"Until—" Scott insisted quietly. "Until I'm completely unnerved and exhausted. I try all the remedies," she added lightly. "Aspirin, bromides, and then after a long time the thing wears itself out. But it is ghastly while it lasts."

"I can imagine," Scott said dryly. "Why didn't you tell me all this before, Paula?"

"I didn't think of you in a professional capacity," Paula said in a low voice. "And then I hated to have you know. I've always been rather proud of my vaunted well-being."

"And you've gone all this time without any relief?" Scott asked.

"ONCE," said Paula carelessly, "some doctor—I forgot his name—gave me a prescription in New York. It helped me at the time."

"Do you know what it was?" Scott probed.

"No, I haven't an idea." Paula glanced at her watch. "Gracious, Scott, I'd no idea it was so late. I'm due at a tea!"

"Come in tomorrow and let me make some pictures and get a clear history of your case. There may be a pressure of some kind. Or it may be sinus."

"I'll come in as soon as I can," Paula promised. Her face was pale. Scott went to his desk and wrote on a pad. He tore off a bit of paper and handed it to Paula. "This prescription may help. It would under certain conditions. Under others it wouldn't. And come soon. We'll get at the root of your trouble."

Paula thought, "What a fool I was to get into this. Thinking he could be deceived into believing they're ordinary headaches. Telling him about them, just because I wanted an excuse to come here."

She decided swiftly. "I won't come back. I'll call him over the phone and tell him the medicine worked wonders."

The lean year wanes to Christmas, what shall we, the pinched ones, the empty-handed give, Whose yesterdays are but futility, And whose tomorrows with the zeal to live, Are all but eaten up? We may not bring New gifts, the choice of wealth; but we can take Some old gifts from our earthly garnering And give them to the world for Christ's sweet sake, For there are still upon life's attic shelf A few old treasures worth passing on: Courage forgotten; love that knows not self But only others; virtue, men thought gone— We yet may give, if Time's thick dust we stir; We'll find our gold and frankincense and myrrh—Selected.

The Junior-Senior High P. T. A. held its Christmas meeting in the high school auditorium, with the president, Mrs. Edwin Dossert presiding and 42 members responding to the roll call. The meeting opened with the singing of "Silent Night" followed by a very helpful and appropriate devotion by Mrs. C. D. Lester. Mrs. John Well-born in a short talk gave the origin of Christmas Carols. The Origin of Christmas Customs was discussed by Mrs. Ernest Hill. The president's message was told by Mrs. E. P. Young. Mrs. Dossert closed the program with a very interesting report of the state congress recently held in Little Rock.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Lester and son, Edward were Sunday visitors with relatives in Mars Hill.

Mrs. J. L. Green and Miss Alma Atkins were Saturday visitors in Little Rock.

The Friday Music club held its final meeting of the year on Friday afternoon at the home of Miss Harriett Story with Miss Mary Louise Keith as joint hostess. Following an hour's practice by the Choral club, Mrs. J. C. Carlton president conducted a short business period, at which time plans were completed for the club's annual Christmas tree celebration to be held at the home of Mrs. C. C. McNeill on Friday evening, December 20. The regular routine of business was discussed, after which the following program was given: Piano, "Hungarian Rhapsody, No. 6," Liszt, Mrs. John Wellborn; Mrs. Dick Watkins read a most interesting and instructive paper entitled, "Nationalism Based on Folk Music." Miss Harriett Story sang "Solveig's Song," by Grieg, and gave a piano number "Molly on the Shore," by Greiner. The program closed with the piano number, "Deep River," Cole-ridge Taylor by Mrs. J. C. Carlton. The next regular meeting will be held January 10 with Mrs. Edwin Stewart and Mrs. E. G. Norton as hostesses.

Pete Brown of Henderson State Teachers College, Arkadelphia, spent the week end with home folks.

Presenting its annual contribution to the Christmas celebration, the Hope Choral club, supplemented by some of the best male voices selected with choir throughout the city, under the direction of Mrs. John Wellborn, with Mrs. Ralph Routon and Mrs. B. C. Hyatt, organists, Mrs. Edwin Stewart, pianist, and Miss Helen McRae, violinist, presented a beautifully arranged program at a candle light service on Sunday evening at the First Methodist church, as a most inspiring opening of the many beautiful Christmas services that will be given by the different churches within the next two weeks. The church was appropriately decorated with Christmas greens, interspersed with the gleaming red berries of the Nandina, with fern-topped pedestals of candelabra holding white lighted candles, all together making a very lovely and inspiring background for the seating of the singers, who, carrying white lighted candles marched through the church to their places singing, "Hark the Herald Angels Sing." The following beautiful program was given: Organ Prelude—Mrs. Ralph Routon. Invocation, Rev. Guy D. Holt. Scripture reading—Rev. Fred H. Harrison. Offertory, Pastoral—Euphony, Messiah, Handel, Chorus, "And the Glory of the Lord," Messiah Handel. Air for bass, "The People That Walk in Darkness," Messiah, Handel—Talbot Field. Violin, "Praise Song" from "DeMeistersingers," Wagner—Miss Helen McRae. Chorus, "Glory to God," Messiah, Handel. Organ (a) "Meditation"—Sturgis; (b) "Christmas Pastoral," Harker. Chorus, "Hallelujah," Messiah, Handel, with audience standing. Benediction, Rev. Wallace R. Rogers. Seven-fold Amen—The Chorus, Post-lute—"Christmas Fantasy," Scott.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Meek and little daughter, Carolyn, of Bradley, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. K. G. McRae.

Denn Blackburn of the Extension Service, of the University of Arkansas, Fayetteville, was a Saturday visitor in the city.

Mrs. Jack Fowler of Memphis is the guest of her sister, Mrs. G. H. Martin, and Dr. Martindale and other relatives.

Hope Chapter O. E. S. will have a quilting party and pot luck lunch Tuesday, December 17. All interested members are invited to be there at 9 o'clock and bring a donation for the Christmas box for the Mason's home.

Jones Will Box Womack 3 Rounds

McCoy and Rhodes to Meet in Wrestling Bout Here Wednesday

A three-round boxing match between Blondy Jones, amateur champion of Shreveport, and George Womack of Hope, will feature the American Legion fight card Wednesday night at Fair Park.

Jones made a good impression on Hope fans last week in a mixed boxing-wrestling match against Al (Dusty) Rhodes, instructor of the amateur club here.

Jones and Womack weigh 135 pounds each, both have had considerable experience, and a good bout is expected.

Mickey McCoy of Shreveport has been signed with Al (Dusty) Rhodes in a professional wrestling match, scheduled for two out of three falls. It will be McCoy's first appearance here.

The remainder of the card will be made up of four amateur wrestling matches and a battle royal, the fighters to be announced probably Tuesday.

ARTHUR J. ALTMAYER of Wisconsin, former assistant secretary of labor, an expert on security and part author of the present plan, a statistician and authority on labor legislation.

VINCENT MILES, Arkansas lawyer and former Democratic national committeeman, who has had relief work experience.

Experts on Staff
The board's executive director is Frank B. Bane, former director of the American Public Welfare Association, an outstanding authority on welfare administration, with practical experience in Knoxville, Tenn., and for the state of Virginia.

In charge of mechanization of accounting procedure, perhaps the toughest assignment of all, is Henry P. Seidemann, famous here as the wizard who planned the intricate AAA machinery for handling millions of adjustment contracts and benefit checks.

Thomas H. Elliot, grandson of the late Charles W. Elliot, is SSB's youthful general counsel.
The SSB thus far has operated with a skeleton staff provided by the Labor Department and its work has been mostly setting up minimum requirements and giving advice to states, reviewing plans and legislation, and planning for a future organization which may eventually employ 10,000 persons.

How Help Is Divided
Since the first money to be paid out under the program will be the grants to states for immediate welfare work, let's consider that phase and its sums and conditions.

It is the smallest of the three phases and the least controversial, since similar federal subsidies have been granted before and there is no question of their feasibility or constitutionality. The grants approved by congress and about to be appropriated for are:
OLD AGE ASSISTANCE—This will be described in a subsequent article, along with the long range old age plan.

AID TO THE BLIND—Appropriation of $3,000,000, to be administered by SSB and distributed to states which contribute amounts equal to the federal allotment to them and establish state-wide assistance plans for the needy blind.

Federal share of pension to a blind individual can't exceed $15 a month, but will match the state share up to that figure.

AID TO DEPENDENT CHILDREN—Appropriation of $24,750,000, administered by SSB, to states establishing systems of pensions for needy children under 16 who by reason of death, absence, or incapacity of a parent are living with a relative "in a

Rev. J. W. Bailey Closing Two-Day Meeting at Lonoke Baptist

The Rev. J. W. Bailey, negro evangelist of Marshall, Texas, will bring a two-day revival meeting to a close Monday night at Lonoke Baptist church. He obtained 83 conversions in services Sunday.

The Rev. Wallace R. Rogers, pastor of First Baptist church, will deliver a sermon Monday night, using as his subject "The Second Coming of Christ." A section of the church will be reserved for white persons.

A musical program by students of Yerger High School will be presented, featuring negro spirituals. Henry Yerger, head of negro schools here the past 50 years, will deliver a brief address.

Services begin at 8 p. m.

Most of this will come under the head of "mothers' pensions," the state must contribute double the amount of the federal grant, giving two-thirds of any pension up to $18 a month for the first child and $12 for any additional children.

MATERNAL AND CHILD HEALTH—Sum of $3,800,000 to be administered by the Children's Bureau, through state health agencies for services promoting health of mothers and children. Grants are on a 50-50 matching basis, with $1,800,000 to be distributed in proportion to number of births in the states and $900,000 in proportion to need.

Present local material and child health services will be promoted in co-operation with medical, nursing, and welfare groups.

CRIPPLED CHILDREN—Sum of $2,850,000, handled by the Children's Bureau, for states on an equal matching basis, to extend facilities and services for crippled children or children suffering from conditions leading to crippling, in co-operation with medical, nursing, health and welfare groups, and agencies specializing on rehabilitation of physical handicapped children.

CHILD WELFARE—Sum of $1,500,000, of which the Children's Bureau is authorized to pay $10,000 to each state and $990,000 in proportion to rural population.

Bureau and state public welfare agencies will co-operate to develop, especially in rural areas—welfare services for protection and care of homeless, dependent, and neglected children and children in danger of becoming delinquent.

PUBLIC HEALTH—Sum of $8,000,000 to be distributed by U. S. Public Health Service on bases of population, special health problems, and financial needs of states, to assist in establishing and maintaining adequate state public health services in accordance with plans presented by state health authorities to the National Health Service for approval.

The act also provides $841,000 of supplementary grants to states for vocational rehabilitation work and $4,000,000 for the fiscal year 1936 as grants for administration of state unemployment compensation laws.

suit contesting the result of the election is pending in Howard Circuit Court.

Judge Henry, the Rev. O. E. Holmes, pastor of the First Methodist church, the Rev. F. W. Patterson, pastor of the First Baptist church, and Fred Wesson, oil dealer, all of Nashville, attended the hearing here Saturday.

Judge Henry said that legalization of liquor had increased drunkenness in Howard county and had added $100 or more monthly to the court expense of the county. The ministers agreed with the judge and declared that conditions were far better during the prohibition era.

Pittsburgh Wins Over California

Panthers Squeeze Out 12-to-7 Victory on California's Field

LOS ANGELES, Calif.—A hard running, fighting team of Pitt Panthers beat Southern California on five line plays inside the five-yard line late in the fourth quarter Saturday and conquered the Trojans, 12 to 7, in a game that excited 40,000 spectators with its numbing tackles and bruising blocking.

The Panthers, whose victory evened their inter-sectional score at two victories each and closed a home-and-home series with the locals, showed savage stubbornness in three goal line stands. They stopped Howard Jones' team on the five-yard line early in the second quarter after Fullback Patrick had put over Pitt's first touchdown on a line drive from Southern California's 40-yard line. In the third quarter Pitt again staved off a threat from which reached its 14-yard line from which Paul Shaw, end, broke through to spill the Trojan ball-carrier.

YOU'RE THE FIRST ONES I'VE EVER MET, WHO WANTED TO GIVE ME SOMETHING, WITHOUT ASKING FOR A FAVOR IN RETURN!

BOYS, YOU'VE MADE ME REALIZE HOW MUCH BETTER IT IS TO GIVE THAN TO RECEIVE! I THINK YOUR CHARITY ORGANIZATION IS GREAT!!

TO SHOW YOU MY APPRECIATION, I WANT YOU TO TAKE THIS ENVELOPE TO THE BANK AND SEE WHAT THEY'LL GIVE YOU FOR IT! YOU'LL BE SURPRISED!

GEE! THANKS!!

SAY, I WONDER WHO HE IS? I FORGOT TO SEE WHO ALL THOSE LETTERS WERE ADDRESSED TO!

LOOK IN THE ENVELOPE AN' SEE WHAT HE PUT IN IT!

LOOK, NUTTY! A CHECK FOR $500... BUT, GEE, HE SIGNED IT "SANDY CLAUSE!"

I GUESS THAT MAKES US JUST A COUPLE OF SAPS WHO TOOK TOO BIG A LEAD OFF THIRD BASE!!
